New Yards At Newell With 15 To 20 Tracks Is Started

Construction of a new yards with 15 to 20 tracks has been started by the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad at Newell, Pa., on the Monongahela River.

When completed some time next year, the yards will represent to the company an outlay of more than one-half million dollars. The yards will extend from Newell about halfway south to Brownsville. The purpose will be to effect interchange with the Monongahela Railroad. At the present time there is no suitable interchange.

First work on the yards was done about a month ago, according to A. E. Rayner, chief engineer of the

STATE SHERIFFS TO CONVENE

The annual meeting of the sheriffs of Pennsylvania will be held in Washington on January 1, 2 and 3, according to an announcement just made by Sheriff Otto Luellen, chairman of the entertainment committee, who is also in charge of the arrangements. There will be 67 sheriffs in attendance, to which number will be amplified a portion, at least, of their deputies and solicitors.

The program included addresser by Col. James E. Barnett, Judge J. Boyd Crumrine, General Edward Martin and William E. Ralston, the latter named of Pittsburgh.

One of the features will be a banquet and smoker at the George Washington hotel.

HOLDING A CRIPPLE FOR BEING DISORDERLY

The police had little to do yesterday, with one exception, and that was in the case of a cripple, who refused to give his name when arrested and is being held awaiting a hearing before Burgess J. Bryant Tussing on a drunk and disorderly charge.

The man is said to have been formerly of Fayette City, but was seen on the streets here on Christmas day and before in the role of a mendicant. In fact, according to Chief of Police Jas. A. Murphy, he had been making a general nuisance of himself in the borough; one of the things which does is to hang around the coal works office and the Macbeth-Evans Glass company on pay days, begging.

Yesterday he went into a store here and insulted the woman in charge, and used the same vile epithets to the police when they arrested him. He is a man of perhaps 50 years of age.

INCOMING OF YULETIDE MARKED BY TRAGEDY; COMMUNITY SHOCKED

Three Monessen Young Men In Fatal Accident, Which Has Already Claimed Two, With Chances For Recovery of Third Believed Very Doubtful

In the midst of all the joys and happiness of the season three homes of the immediate vicinity of Charleroi were visited on Christmas Eve by the grim result of one of the most tragic and distressing automobile accidents, which turned the day that should have been the happiest of the year, into gloom and sadness. Not only the families of the victims are sorely stricken, but the entire community was thunderstruck and the Christmas spirit of many was dampened by the tragedy.

The dead are: Herbert A. Kuhl, aged 29, World War veteran, son of Mrs. Mary Kuhl of Donner avenue, Monessen, employee of the Pittsburgh Steel company; died Wednesday night at 10:30 o'clock in the local hospital. He suffered two broken legs, broken arm, crushed ribs and internal injuries.

Joseph King, aged 28, married, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael King, of Second street, Monessen, World War veteran, and a former professional baseball player, employed at the Pittsburgh Steel company plant, died at 10 o'clock Wednesday night in the local hospital of internal injuries.

Halford M. Thomas, aged 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Thomas of Park Way, Monessen, employee of the Pittsburgh Steel company; suffering with deep gash on head, broken right arm, fractured left leg and perhaps internal injuries.

The accident happened at 5:30 o'clock Christmas Eve on the Charleroi-Speers road just outside the borough limits. No one witnessed the accident, although motorists reached the scene almost directly afterwards, and as not one of the victims was able to give an account, it is believed that it was caused by the smoke from a locomotive on the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks, running parallel to the road, which obscured the vision of the driver, causing him to lose sight of the road, and the car, a Buick touring machine, plunged headlong into a steel trolley pole on the right of the highway. The car was completely demolished.

The machine, owned and driven by Herbert A. Kuhl, was south-bound; Kuhl and his two companions were enroute to deliver Christmas gifts at Kuhl's brother's home. They had just finished work at the plant and were accompanied to Charleroi by J. G. Albright, Roy Balmer and Claude McKenna, who were dropped off at the various streets nearest their homes.

The Charleroi ambulance was immediately called and bore the victims to the Charleroi-Monessen hospital, where the two succumbed to the severe shock and injuries a few hours after their admittance, while the third is still unconscious, chances for his recovery being very doubtful.

The dead men were probably the best known young men of the Monongahela valley. They both enjoyed a very wide acquaintance and were highly esteemed throughout the vicinity.

Mr. Kuhl is the son of Mrs. Mary Kuhl and the late Andrew Kuhl. He was born in McKeesport, December 31, 1895, and when but two years old came to Monessen with his parents, where he has lived ever since. He had been employed as clerk in the office of the Pittsburgh Steel plant for 15 years and served with the 26th Engineers in France. He was a member of the Monessen Elks club, Lutheran church, and Thomas McKee Post, No. 28, American Legion, Monessen.

Joe King is survived besides his parents, by his wife, Mrs. Margaret Young King, one daughter, Mary Margaret, 14 months old, one brother, John King at home, and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Reilly of Zelionople, and Miss Helen at home. He was a World War veteran, and member of St. Leonard's Catholic church of Monessen. For a number of years he played baseball with the State League of Florida. Funeral services will take place Saturday morning at 9 o'clock with requiem high mass at St. Leonard's, followed by interment in Monongahela cemetery, Braddock.

Both funeral services will be in charge of the Post and will be of military character.

Young Thomas, whose chances for recovery seem to be very slight, is a member of one of Monessen's best known families.

As a mark of respect for the deceased, at 11 o'clock each night, the American Legion Post of Monessen is sounding taps from their building.

CIGARET CAUSE OF MAN'S DEATH

An unidentified man was fatally burned last night at 6:30 o'clock, when the bed on which he had fallen asleep became ignited from a lighted cigarette in a room on the second floor of the Monessen House 1135 Schoonmaker avenue, and he succumbed to his burns in the Memorial hospital, Monongahela, at 10:35 o'clock.

The man, who was about 55 years of age, grey hair and moustache, applied for a room at the hotel at 5:30 p.m. yesterday, being assigned to room 5, on the second floor. He enclosed himself in the room and nothing was seen of him until guests of the hotel noticed smoke issuing from the cracks of the door and a fire alarm was sounded. The firemen responded immediately and when Chief of Police William Horn opened the door of the room the man staggered out, his clothing practically burned from his back. He was rushed to the hospital where death followed soon after.

The man had evidently dropped to sleep on the bed only divesting himself of his coat with a lighted cigarette in his hand. The damage to the bed was the only damage that accrued. On a chair near his bed there was found lying an open pack of cigarettes and a number of burnt matches.

The man was conscious up until his passing, and every effort was made to learn his identity, but he evidently desired to withhold this information. He mumbled a name that sounded like "Fritz Coleman," but he refused to give an address. All identification was burned with his clothes, with the exception of a letter found in the room addressed to Mrs. W. C. Faris of California, Pa. He was of German descent.

$20,000 FIRE IN MCDONALD

McDonald had a $20,000 fire yesterday afternoon, in which conflagration two firemen were overcome by the smoke, and member of three families were compelled to flee from their apartments in the McDonald Cooperative Association building. Fifty members of the volunteer fire department left their homes and Christmas parties to brave the winter blasts and fight the flames, which for a time threatened to sweep through the business center of the town. A call for help was sent to Imperial and the department of that town arrived in 15 minutes and valiantly fought side by side with the McDonald fire fighters in checking the progress of the fire.

Zero Weather. Marks The Holiday Here

Zero weather interfered to some extent, at least with the pleasures of the local populace yesterday. As predicted, we got a "White Christmas" with a falling temperature.

The cold weather did not act so much as a deterrent to the pleasures of the young people, but it was noticeable that most all of "old folks" stayed at home, although there were sunrise church meetings, and services of the sanctuary held even before sunrise.

During the day the various charitable organizations, church societies, in distributing gifts and cheer to the deserving poor of the borough and the community, while others of our people were seen at the movies or enjoying some other kind of Christmas diversion.

Cuddy DeMarco Didn't Kill "Kid" Wagner, And Raw "Draw" Is The Decision

Cuddy DeMarco seems to be the victim of a perverse fate when he fights in Pittsburgh. Yesterday, after being entitled to the decision over Ed die (Kid) Wagner of Philadelphia, whom he has already defeated on two occasions, he was given a draw; and with a draw, but this morning's Post and Gazette Times seems again to take delight in "roasting" the local boy. It will be noted that when Cuddy visits the east and wins victories he is a "Pittsburgh" boy, but when he fights in Pittsburgh, he is a "have 'it in' for Cuddy, and perfect 'Charlestown' youth. According to the Post of this morning he is accused of "pulling" in yesterday's contest with Wagner, save in the tenth round. Witnesses of the battle, unbiased in their opinions, witnesses who are judges of ring bouts, claim that he is proverbially a winner there, and in the tenth beat Wagner so badly that he was clearly entitled to the verdict.

Zivic Beats Reno Subbing For Hart; Tremaine Stops Wolgast

Jack Zivic, Pittsburgh's pride, and he had given Nate Goldman more than he was looking for, demonstrated to 4,000 fight fans in Philadelphia that he is right in line to take on anyone clamoring for light-weight or welterweight honors by defeating Joe Reno, one of the toughest irds developed in Trenton. There was no doubt as to Zivic's victory. The Pittsburgh battler led throughout the 10 rounds, and it did not require any undue use of gray matter on the part of the two judges to give the bout to Jack. Reno is not a first-class battler, and he lacks polish and skill with the mitts, but he is what is classed as a tough egg, and one who is always a roublesome. He has given some of left-handed hook to the jaw. Philadelphia's best all the fight they ever wanted and he won more than Danny Gartin defeated Mickey Trane victory in Trenton rings via the rounds and Babe Ruth won from Reche But yesterday he met his master, Rodgers in 10 rounds. Have Yet to Learn Much About Disease

What is disease? Everybody knows that disease involves a physical injury to tissue cells, but what and how? The truth is, we are really only at the beginning of our knowledge of the cause of disease. We must be able to measure exactly the injury, the vitality and the degree of recovery of body cells to find the answer, writes Paul H. De Kruif in the American Mercury.

Recently a man named Osterhout, obscure save among biologists, has made a step toward answering the question. Working with a common sea-weed, laminaria, he has begun to give exact meanings to the hitherto vague terms, vitality, injury and recovery. He has found that normal weeds possess a certain resistance to the passage of an electric current, that this resistance may be accurately measured, and that it is always of exactly the same order of magnitude for the cells of healthy laminaria. But take the cells out of their natural environment in sea water and put them in solutions of different content and density, and their resistance to the electric current falls at once. The greater the damage to the cells the greater the fall.

The coincidence of the fall in resistance with the degree of injury has enabled Osterhout to construct equations which predict the exact amount of injury that the cells of laminaria will suffer. He can write down just how much and how long a cell can be exposed to damage and still recover completely. In brief, Osterhout measures injury, vitality and recovery. That is the beginning of science. That is the real beginning of the answer to the question: "What is disease?"

Uncharted Rocks Are Terror to Mariners

Uncharted rocks and islands of the sea have mysterious ways of dodging and befouling mapmakers. Some times they are dangerous.

One of the worst, Lamb rock, was found about thirty years ago coming straight up to the surface in water 200 feet deep. It was like a cathe- dral spire and rose straight into the middle of the Canadian liner lane into the St. Lawrence river. In calm weather its tip was 23 feet below the surface. This is a bare margin of safety, but in rough weather the rock was a lurking peril to any big ship that might come along.

The Avocat rock, in the southern end of the Red sea, also stands in the middle of the steamer lane to India. The steamer Avocat struck it and sank in 104 fathoms. It looked like pure carelessness on the part of the captain.

The British vessel Flying Fish was sent to investigate. It could find no trace of any rock. Then another ship, the Teddington, sank at the same place. Another British vessel went to investigate, and it, too, could find nothing. Then a third vessel nosed about in the vicinity for six weeks with equal ill success.

Finally H. M. S. Stork made an investigation and located the rock only three hundred yards from the place where one of its predecessors had anchored. The rock was covered by a bare fifteen feet of water at low tide.

Surveying the Seas

Plans for the most complete survey of the ocean ever attempted have been inaugurated by a conference representing scientific branches of the United States government and allied institutions.

One or more ships will be fitted out with a complete laboratory and equipped with the latest scientific apparatus for the first cruise. The sea bottom will not only be mapped, but the composition of the water, its density, temperature, and currents which affect the distribution of marine plant and animal life, will be studied at all depths.

Five-sevenths of the surface of the earth is covered by water. This water area can produce more food than all the land can ever be made to yield, and one of the purposes of the expedition will be to take an inventory of such food possibilities.

On Growing Old

When we become old, we want to get off the streets. We always sympathize with the old men who have nothing to do, who are not wanted anywhere and who have no place to go. When we become old and useless, we want a place of our own to go to, a place that is absolutely our own and which we can manage as we please. We hope it will be a little place where we can potter around with fruits and flowers and vegetables and chickens, and keep busy. We don't want to give people the opportunity to show neglect nor idle time in which to see visions of the grim monster. Old men who loiter about the streets, it seems to us, make a mistake.—Arkansas Thomas Cat.

Origin of Silk Culture

Although silk culture originated in China and the very name China finds its birth in a term meaning "silk people," the United States looks to Japan for most of this raw material. American mills are weaving nearly 50,000,000 pounds of raw silk annually, of which anese mulberry orchards, says the De- troit News. The ugly little silk worm is treated with great respect in the Orient, for it brings to the far eastern peoples more than $200,000,000 from the United States alone.

FORTY GALLONS OF MOONSHINE ARE CAPTURED

Capture of forty gallons of moon- shine whisky on last Tuesday night just as its delivery to dispensers is said to have been started develop- ments which led to the arrest of seven alleged bootleggers by Washington police on Christmas eve.

Three men were taken into custody along with the liquor. They were Dominick Cotella, aged 26, of Donora; Patsy Molinaro, 146 West Straw- berry avenue, Washington, and John Davis of Gallatin.

One of the seven arrested following the capture of the booze, Rich Henry, colored, aged 28, of Donora, is alleg- ed by the police to have transported the liquor from the river district to Washington. He is being held under $3,000 bail.

Others taken into custody are al- leged to have been members of a "ring of bootleggers" who were being supplied with river district contra- band. They were Charles Nixon, of Burton avenue, Washington, at whose home the machine containing the whisky is said to have been making a delivery; Morgan Thomas, of Lin- coln street; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bar- none of West Strawberry avenue, and Tony Mamiarano, aged 22, Italian, the quartet named being of the county seat.

The seventh man placed under ar- rest was Louie Perretto, aged 27, of Donorda, who is alleged to have been implicated in furnishing whisky il- legally.

ANENT EUTHANASIA.

The word means a painless, easy death, but it is also applied in description of the modern proposition that, with due precaution and consultation, doctors be allowed quietly to kill consenting patients to whom they believe death is near and in whom a prolongation of life means only a few days or weeks of almost intolerable suffering. By some this is supposed to be a beneficent act of mercy when doctors are certain the results will be as indicated. But can doctors be absolutely certain, and even if certain can they be justified in usurping the place of a Providence for some of its decrees? It is said that only a very small minority of the medical profession has received this proposition favorably, for the very good reason that there appears to be no such thing as absolute certainty. Most of us have heard of persons who, after being told by the doctors, lived a long while, and sometimes in fairly good health for years. Moreover, the majority of physicians regard it as their duty to prolong life, under any circumstances.

It is surprising to read of a bill introduced in the Danish parliament, which would virtually legalize the taking of life by doctors in special cases. It does not repeal the present law prohibiting it as murder, in order to release a hopelessly ill person from severe and inevitable suffering, punishment may be waived under extenuating circumstances. Yet the passage of this bill is said to be highly improbable, even with the backing of the Danish government, because of the reluctance in the medical profession as well as in the public to consent to any other decision than that of nature itself.

Old English Custom

A maiden assize once meant an assize where no criminal was left for execution. Upon such an occasion, the judge was entitled to a pair of white gloves. A modern session of the English court of assize at which no prisoner is tried is known as a maiden assize, and it is customary for the sheriff of the county to present the judge with a pair of white gloves as a symbol of the innocent character of his administration.

One Thing He Did Know

A magnate on trial had a very eloquent attorney. The summing up speech attracted a large gallery, and one of the listeners was so deeply impressed that he leaned over to the defendant and said: "What a lawyer that man is! Pearls of wisdom drop from his mouth." "I don't know about that," responded the defendant grudgingly. "But I do know that what he is saying is costing me at least a dollar a word."

New Use for Zeppelins

An Austrian scientist, by means of applying the short radio wave, made it possible to use Zeppelin airships for land reconnoitering in large desert and waste areas. If this method is adopted, he says, the short radio waves can be used in locating water deposits in the desert or waste land. It would be an indication of water underground if the short waves were reflected from the ground.

Agricultural Country

Only 10 per cent of India's population of 319,000,000 are supported by industrial pursuits, while 73 per cent are supported by agricultural and pastoral activities. The existence of child marriage there is declining at a rapid rate, and the increase in population has been only 1.2 per cent in ten years.

Have Odd "Privilege"

The Gentlemen-at-Arms is the principal military corps of the royal household and the oldest corps in England, with the exception of the Yeomen of the Guard. One of the curious privileges claimed by the Gentlemen-at-Arms is that of carrying up the second course of the sovereign's dinner.

Hopeless

In a motor accident case recently the motorist said that the injured man would persist in walking right in the middle of the road. Judging from the state of some of our roads we think it quite possible that the unfortunate pedestrian had got into a groove.—London Humorist.

Speeding Up Cablegrams

Messages by cable have gradually been increased from 20 to 50 per minute. This speeding up has been made possible by mechanical relay instruments that have supplanted operators formerly stationed at the terminals of the cable lines.

Scots Had Many Tories

Didn't know you cared for fishing.
I don't ordinarily, but it's the only chance I have of finding myself at the end of a line that isn't busy.

The Republican party, in terms of the automobile trade, got about 18,300,000 smiles to the Cal.

Uncle Cy—Nok I'll teach you to milk the cow.

Niece (visiting from college)—Oh, uncle, I'm afraid of the cow. Couldn't I learn on the calf?

So the fond parents called the kid's cradle Plymouth—it rocked.

Bank Inspector—Where's the cashier? Gone for a rest?
President—No, to avoid it.

A Future Politician.

What makes you think the baby is going to be a great politician, asked the young mother anxiously?

I'll tell you, answered the young father confidently. He can say more things that sound well and mean nothing at all than any youngster I ever saw.

My Bob.

Who laid me, youngish, on the shelf
As ten years older than myself?
Who weekly fleeces me of pelf?

My bob.

Who bares the burrows in my throat
Who makes my hat fit like a boat?
Who every morning gets my goat?

My bob.

What makes friends sneer, "I told you so?"
Who came because I can't say no,
And lightly come, won't lightly go?

My bob.

Teacher—Where was the Declaration of Independence signed?
Johnny—At the bottom.

Give me liberty or give me ten nights in a bar-room.

The Way of Youth

The truth is that youth always knew what it was old enough to find out rather than what it was old enough to be told.—Alexander Black in Harper's Magazine.

Regular Chore

Breathless cooed sitting beside a farmer who is plucking a chicken. Watches operation gravely for some time. Then: "Do you take its clothes off every night?"

Ancient Tools

Recent excavations in California brought to light two tools—a petrified bone and about two inches long, and a rudely fashioned quartzite palm ax.

Owe Greatness to Mothers

It is the general rule, that all superior men inherit the elements of their superiority from their mothers.—Michelet.

Must Justify Itself

The moment must be pregnant and sufficient to itself if it is to become a worthy segment of time and eternity.—Goethe.

Expend Millions

Millions of the gold, diamond and coal mining companies of South Africa are sometimes as much as $30,000,000 a year.

Cocoa Doormats

The familiar cocoa-doormats, seen practically all over the country, come mostly from Calcutta, India.

Power of the Mind

The mind is its own place, and in itself can make a heaven or hell, a paradise or a torment.

Four Not Instinctive

According to a report of experiments at Columbia university, where a hundred normal young folk were subjected to many tests, children are born without fear, and it is only after they are three that they begin to show signs of fear of such things as snakes, fire, the darkness, and so forth. The investigators claim that fear is the result of mental association rather than instinctive caution.

Vanity Cost Life

The Assyrians were a luxurious and beauty-loving people, and both men and women were addicted to an elaborate use of cosmetics. According to history, the last monarch, by name Sardanapalus, "dressed and painted like his women," and it is due to this vanity that he met his death. One of his generals visiting him found him penciling his eyebrows and stabbed him.

Motives

A little thinking shows us that the deeds of kindness we do are effective in proportion to the love we put into them. More depends upon the motive than upon the gift. If the thought be selfish, if we expect compensation, or are guilty of close calculation, the result will be like the attitude of mind which invited it.—Dresser.

Bristles on Head

The African crowned crane derives its name from the curious fan-shaped straw-colored crest of wavy bristles that adorns the back of its head, says Nature Magazine. This crest, with the long neck, bare face, and bushy black feathers of the top of the head, give the bird a striking appearance.

"Mugwump" Defined

In political parlance a "mugwump" is a man with no fixed beliefs or party affiliations. Horace Porter in the Cleveland-Blaire campaign of 1884 perpetrated a bonnet that became famous when he said, "A mugwump is a person educated beyond his intellect."

Origin of Bachelor

The word "bachelor" is derived from an old word for "coward." A bachelor, or coward, stood lowest in the social scale, and the term therefore came to be applied to men who had not yet reached the full dignity of manly responsibility.

Disadvantage of Middle Age

Another thing about middle age, or worse, is that while you may admire the primroses along the path of dalliance just as much as ever you don't feel so much like groping and picking them.—Ohio State Journal.

Improve Your Child

Edison, with all his inventions, was a piker compared to the ambitious young photographer who advertised: "Your baby, if you have one, can be enlarged, united, and framed for $8.75."—Jack o' Lantern.

Pass Over Censure

Be not diverted from your duty by any idle reflections the silly world may make upon you, for their censures are not in your power and consequently should not be any part of your concern.—Exchange.

Hint for Watch Carriers

One railroad has issued a bulletin asking its employees to wind their watches at the same time every day, preferably in the morning, which helps to keep the timepiece in good condition.

Confusion in Terms

Only a doctor's customers are "patients," while a lawyer's are "clients," in spite of the fact that having a lawyer takes more patience than anything else in the world.—Boston Transcript.

Aged Apple Trees

The apple tree is the longest lived of American fruit trees. In many parts of the East it is not unusual to find trees healthy and bearing fruit at the age of one hundred years.

Gold Far Below Ground

The greatest depth at which gold has as yet been excavated from the earth is 4,200 feet (about three-fourths of a mile), at the New Chums mine in Australia.

Let the Water Run Out

Brushes should be dried with the bristles turned downward, so the water will not soak into the backs of the brushes and loosen the bristles.

Keeps Its Dead Leaves

Maple, beech and hickory trees lose their foliage when frost touches them, but the winter oak retains its dead leaves all winter.

Poetical Request

If we must part forever, give me but one kind word to think upon and please myself with, while my heart is breaking.—Otway.

Egotism

It is only when a man is complimented that he thinks he is seeing himself as others see him.—Boston Transcript.

Pays to Give It to Them

A Minnesota judge ruled that cows have the right of way. Every motorist knows that.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Head and Heart

The head learns new things, but the heart evermore practices old experiences.—Becher.

The honeymoon is expensive, of course, but think of the hotel towels you can accumulate.

The usefulness of a man's life is not always to be measured by the length of his funeral procession.

African Oil Palm Has Great Variety of Uses

Unlike the date and the coconut palm, the oil palm is not at all well known. Nevertheless, it is exceedingly useful. In the Congo, writes Mr. J. J. Marston in "An African Adventure," and for that matter in virtually all of the West Africa, it is the staff of life.

Thousands of years ago the Egyptians used the sap for embalming the bodies of their king; dead. Today the oil palm not only represents the most important agricultural industry of the colony—it has long since surpassed rubber as the premier product—but it has an almost bewildering variety of uses. It is food and drink and shelter. From the trunk the native extracts his wine; from the fruit comes oil for soap, for salad dressing and for margarine; with the leaves the native makes a roof for his house; with the fiber he makes his mats, his baskets and his strings for fishing nets. The wood itself he uses in building.

An oil palm will bear fruit within seven years after the young tree is planted. The fruit comes in what is called a regimine, which resembles a huge bunch of grapes, each fruit in the cluster is approximately the size of a large date. The outer part, which is called the husk, is a thick, sticky yellow oil incased in a thick skin. Imbedded in the oil is the kernel, which contains a finer oil. The fruit is boiled down, and the kernels are dried and exported in bags to England, where they are broken open and the oil in them used for making margarine.

For hundreds of years the natives have gathered the fruit of the palm and have extracted the oil. The waste at first was enormous; the blacks threw away the kernels because they were unaware of the valuable substance inside.—Youth's Companion.

Legends of First Man Common to All Races

Almost every race of people has legends regarding the first man and woman. Among North American Indians myths are common. Traditions trace back our first parents to white and red maize; another is that man, searching for a wife, was given the daughter of the King of the muskrats, who in being dipped into the waters of a neighboring lake, became a woman. One of the strangest stories concerning the origin of woman is told by the Madagascarenes. Insofar as the creation of man goes the legend is not unlike that related by Moses, only that the fall came before Eve had arrived. After the man had eaten the forbidden fruit he became affected with a boil on the leg, out of which, when it burst, came a beautiful girl. The man's first thought was to throw her to the pig; but he was commanded by a messenger from heaven to let her play among the grass and flowers until she was of marriageable age, then to make her his wife. He did so, called her Barbara, and she became the mother of all races of men.

Fowl Names

The fat plumber was in a philosophical mood. "There is simply no understanding woman," he observed. "Whaddye mean? the thin carpenter asked, just to start the conversation. "Well, for instance, a woman does not object to being called a duck." "No." "And she even smiles if some one happens to refer to her as a chicken." "Too true." "And most of them will stand for being called squab, broiler or turtle-dove." "Yes, yes, but what's the idea?" "It's just this," the fat plumber exclaimed, "a woman objects to being called a hen, and a hen is the most useful bird of the whole blooming bunch."—Popular Poultry.

Ancient College Custom

A person who fails to pass an examination is said to have been "plucked." This meaning of the word has a curious origin. In olden days when degrees were conferred in Oxford two proctors marched solemnly down the hall and back. Tradesmen with grievances—namely, unpaid bills—would sit on the benches and pluck the proctor's gown as he passed. If the bill was big enough and the tradesman proved his case, the undergraduate was refused his degree. Hence the term "plucked," which, now that its origin is forgotten, is used for failing in examinations of any kind. The proctors still march up and down the hall, but of course their gowns are no longer plucked.

Why the Strife?

We are told that Cines the philosopher once asked Pyrrhus what he would do when he had conquered Italy.

"I will conquer Sicily." "And after Sicily?" "Then Africa." "And after you have conquered the world?" "I will take my ease and be merry." "Then," asked Cines, "why can you not take your ease and be merry now?"—Sir John Lubbock.

Judge for Yourself

"How old is she?" "I can't say, but on her last birthday, when they brought on the cake with the candles, several of the visitors nearly fainted with the heat."

Youth—"Doctor, I'm continually thinking of my girl. Cannot you advise me how to get her off my mind?" Doctor—"Marry her, young man."

Youth—"What good will that do?" Doctor—"Then you'll have her on your hands."

BAG 3,000,000 RATS IN LONDON BATTLE

All Classes Unite in Drive on Rodents.

London.—Rats which infest old London houses, office buildings, restaurants, sewers and subways, and cost the city a million pounds annually in damage, had a hard time of it during "rat week" just ended.

It was estimated that more than 3,000,000 rodents met death at the hands of professional rat catchers, school boys and girls and private citizens who hunted the pests out with every conceivable means. One vermin-chasing company alone was reported to have accounted for 800,000 rats.

The press took up the campaign, and one enthusiastic writer asserted he had seen on moonlight nights whole companies of rats frolicking through Piccadilly. One hospital manager declared he had discovered tight-rope walking brown rats entering the hospital along electric light wires stretched from the roof across the street.

London sanitation officials do not want the war on the rodents to end with the mere annihilation of 3,000,000.

be kept up until the body of London's last rat is given a place in the city museum.

Eskimos Quit Work, Come to City for Movies

Nome, Alaska.—Eskimos attracted by the movies, music and electric lights are beginning to flock here from native villages hundreds of miles distant. Just how many of the fur-clad folks will trek to this mecca and how long they will remain is a question of grave importance.

The last boat from Seattle has sped away south to escape the ice floes. There are ample supplies of food and fuel here to last the average population for eight or nine months, supplemented, of course, by reindeer meat and wild game. But with the intrusion of from 500 to 1,000 Eskimos, all eager to buy American canned goods, candy, pictures, trinkets, clothing and fuel, the situation is critical.

The magnet of civilization is drawing tribes from long distances. As winter comes, they are restless, and steer their dog and reindeer teams toward Nome. Every morning some new party looms up on the horizon to the northeast and tonight's sees another igloo erected along the frozen beach.

The Eskimos are idling away their time. Instead of being out on the trap lines collecting white fur, there is a neglect everywhere. Truly, it seems, the white man and his ways are wrecking the Eskimo mode of self-sustenance just as surely as did the pioneer destroy the American Indian home.

Made Millionaire by Oil, Farmer Prefers Wheat

Wichita, Kan.—With the biggest oil gusher in Kansas pouring out high-gravity oil at the rate of 75 barrels an hour, W. G. Carson, sixty years old, Cowley county farmer, is worried about his wheat crop, disregarding the fact the well has made him a millionaire.

"Don't let the go-darned think run wild and run a lot of wheat," he grumbled when the well came in. Then he went to bed. He stubbornly refused to see the well.

He had Mrs. Carson tell all callers he was ill. The callers mostly were royalty buyers interested in obtaining a share of his eighth interest in the gusher.

Carson until he was fifty was a bachelor. His wife is considerably younger and they have four children. She favors keeping the rights believing greater profits are in sight, from which the children will benefit. The Carsons have more than 1,000 acres around the well, and a conservative estimate of their oil rights alone is $1,000,000.

Dog Raising Profitable

Cottonwood Falls, Kans.—That there is more money in raising thoroughbred Shepherd puppies for sale than in cattle just now is the opinion of Sidney E. Replogle, young farmer of this place. A few months ago he began raising Shepherd puppies. He now has 100 puppies, six weeks old, which are being sold from $30 to $35 apiece.

186,604,733 Acres of U. S. Public Lands

Washington.—Unreserved unappropriated public lands, outside of Alaska, in the United States at the close of the last fiscal year totaled 186,604,733 acres, the Interior department announced.

The public lands left of the vast domain formerly the property of the people which have been sold, leased or given away, are located in 24 states and are exclusive of forest reservations, Indian reservations, other reserved lands and the territory of Alaska. Nevada has the largest unappropriated public land area, with 52,232,273 acres, with Utah second, having 28,767,637 acres. Half of the 48 lands within their boundaries. There are 338,000,000 acres of unreserved public lands in Alaska.

Dorcas—Do you ever allow a man to kiss you while you are motoring with him?

"Philippa—Never. If a man can drive safely while kissing me, he's not giving me the kiss the attention it deserves."

Old Japanese Legend of Lantern and Fan

A story of the origin of the lantern and the fan, as told in Japan, concerns a public official who had two beautiful daughters. As the story goes, the father, who was the treasurer of the father's heart, longed to pay a visit to a friend in another city.

The father, however, was unwilling for them to go, as he feared some young man of high degree would win their love and thus take them from him. In reply to their entreaties the father told them they could go, providing they promised to bring back to him fire wrapped in a paper and wind wrapped in paper.

The girls did not know what to do. They were in despair until one of their maids told them not to worry, but go and consult a certain wise woman who lived near the home of the friend whom they were to visit. After promising their father they would fulfill his wishes they set out for the friend's home. The father was greatly surprised when, upon their return, the daughters presented him with fire enclosed in a beautifully designed paper lantern and wind in a paper fan. Thus, it is said, according to a story printed in the Pathfinder Magazine the lantern and fan came into use.

Blind Persons Read Character by Voice

The similarity of voices is not confusing (to the blind) as a rule. Many are similar, to be sure, but I have never encountered absolute doubles, and in general voices are so sharply differentiated as faces—in fact, often far more.

The only difficulty I have experienced, strangely enough, is caused by one person's having several voices. All of us have; we change tone and quality more or less unconsciously according to our mood and condition. But in some the change is disarmingly marked. One woman, for example, has as many as five voices, each quite distinct.

The physical condition is also revealed by the voice in a striking degree, both as to change and normal characteristics. Fat people, for example, have a voice quality which is all but invariably detectable. Character, too, is easily read. In fact it seems that character is revealed in the voice even more fully and accurately than in the face, no doubt because the subject, failing to recognize this, makes less of an attempt to mask the voice.—Charles McGee Adams, in the Atlantic Monthly.

Odd Garden Products

Little Johnny, who was of school age, was on his way home from the week-night prayer meeting, where he had fallen asleep, a writer in the Youth's Companion reports. His father, who had had great difficulty in waking him at the close of the service, was walking by his side, holding his hand. Fearing that the boy would go to sleep again and that he should have to carry him, the father quickened his pace and, twitching the little fellow's hand vigorously, asked him briskly where he had been that day.

"Over to Mr. O'Neil's," was the drowsy reply.

"And what were they doing at Mr. O'Neil's?"

"Main garden," Johnny replied listlessly.

"And what did they plant?"

"Johnny planted. Father put in an onion and an'—"

"The tongue grew thick," an' radishes an' peas—an' q's—an' r's—an' s's—"

At that point the father picked him up and carried him.

Tailteann Games

The Tailteann games which have been successfully revived in Ireland are so called in perpetuation of the name of Queen Tailte, who tradition says reigned over Ireland some hundreds of years before Christ. Being childless, she adopted a youth named Lugh, who succeeded to the throne at her death. In grateful memory of his foster-mother, King Lugh organized an "Aonach Tailteann"—that is, Tailte's festival—to which each Irish chieftain brought his star athletes, his best horsemen, his most expert harpists. The festival, once established, was continued, with certain interruptions for nearly 2,000 years. Then it lapsed, to be revived by the Free State government.

To Hesitate Is Fatal

They stood in the wings of the opera house. In a few moments she was to go on.

"One last word," said the conductor. "Yes, maestro?"

"If you forget your lines do not hesitate. Never falter."

"But what shall I sing?" asked the new diva.

"That is the point. Be prepared. Sing the multiplication table with your best runs and trills. Nobody will ever know the difference."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Slight Misunderstanding

A seamstress employed by a charitable institution had her wages raised to such an amount that she was eligible to an income tax. When she received the usual forms from the collector she hesitated.

I never figured that the building would catch on fire while I was waiting in the little room for my trousers to be pressed, but I have been frantic a number of times from the fear that they had forgotten I was in there.

Blind People's Sense of Touch Gains Force

Touch, the second sense the blind turn to (after hearing), has been perhaps most in the spotlight, but at the same time easily the most underrated of all the senses they utilize. First of all, it has a fatigue factor second only to such as tactile feeling, its most conspicuous application, demonstrates. Apparently, it should be as easy to read lines of embossed characters with the finger tip as it is to read printed characters with the eye, once the alphabet is mastered. But it is not. Touch simply tires out.

In my own case (and I have been reading by touch 18 years), says Charles McGee Adams in the Atlantic Monthly, two hours is the extreme limit for continuous reading and long before that the end organs are so irritated and there is such a general restlessness that it is most difficult to proceed.

The general usefulness of touch is also limited by the fact that it is a motor sense; by which I mean that the fingers must be moved over the surface of an object, instead of mere contact with it, if an impression is to result. Many of the seeing show they are not aware of this when they simply place the hand of a blind person on an object.

Reach, too, sets sharply defined limits to tactile perception, after resting on a warped or fragmentary concept of an object, as Kipling's story of the six blind men and the elephant aptly illustrates. It is quite impracticable to touch many objects such as moving machinery, hot metal or live wires, at all—which restricts the usefulness of the sense still further.

Birds' Sense of Duty Helped Out Sportsman

A fresh variant of an old yarn which may be familiar to sportsmen crops up in an Irish correspondent's letter to the London Field in the following form.

"One of our party amuses us with a tall story, classical in the district, viz, how he was coming up to shoot on the moor one morning in winter, all by himself, and saw sitting on the wall a grouse. Now, as has been observed, he was all alone, no witnesses, shooting for the pot and game was scarce. Therefore, contrary to all rules of sportsmanship, he fired at the sitting bird, but when the smoke of his black-powder cartridge had cleared away, there the grouse still was, sitting on the wall. So he fired at it again, same result; he expended 12 cartridges, still the bird remained on the wall. Well, he says, turning to us, 'I thought the bird was bewitched; so I walked up to it, and it flew away, and I went on quite bewildered and, would you believe it, on the further side of the wall I picked up 12 dead grouse. You see, there were 13 in the cover sheltering under the wall, and the one I first fired on was the sentry on the lookout for danger, and when he fell the next took his place, and so on.'"

Lost Her Lunch

When I was seventeen I weighed nearly 200 pounds. I had been invited to a picnic and had been asked to furnish two fried chickens. I boarded a street car so crowded that standing room was at a premium. The conductor called a street and a large passenger with two suitcases center-rushed through the crowd just inside the entrance. When the pressure was diminished a veritable rain of fried chicken began. First the drumsticks went past, then the wings. I was too embarrassed to speak. When all the chicken had gravitated to the floor I edged away as if to disclaim any previous ownership. My embarrassment reached its climax, however, when a motherly looking woman said: "Oh, look! The poor fat girl has lost her lunch."—Kehoboth Sunday Herald.

Why "Z" Comes Last

The great ancestor of our letter "Z" was a drawing representing a duck. Such it was in Egyptian picture writing. The drawing was next modified to provide a symbol suitable for use in a running hand (the "hieratic" form), and later this form became, in the Phoenician and early Greek alphabets, a crouched down and compacted until it became recognizably like its present form. With the Phoenicians, Z was the seventh letter of the alphabet, and so it remained in the Greek and early Latin alphabets, but it was dropped from the Latin in the Third century B. C. Later, when the study of Greek became fashionable among the Romans, Z was restored, but it had lost its place in the Roman alphabet and had to fall in at the tail of the procession, where it still remains.

Earning Her Keep

A statistician claims to have discovered that a married woman, who does all the work of her own household, will, in the course of 30 years' married life, prepare nearly 200,000 meals. This is counting a meal as the amount of food required by one person.

During this time she will probably order for household consumption about 3,000 jars of jam, will boil 500,000 potatoes, and devote about 35,000 hours to sweeping, washing and scrubbing. Valuing this work at the accepted prices now paid for "professional" housework probably earns fully as much as her husband. But that is not to say that she gets it—oh, dear, no!—London Answers.

The general theory of evolution as advanced by Darwin has been discredited or exploded, but is accepted as scientifically established. There have been various modifications of Darwin's theory; for example, the theory of development through the use and disuse of parts of the body (which has been discredited by all but a very few Neo-Lamarckians) and the theory of the instinct to survive through evolutionary processes (which has been discredited by all but a very few Neo-Lamarckians) have been discredited in scientific circles.

Made Old Man Feel He Hadn't Realized Worth

Every business executive knows what it is to give and to receive letters of character. Some are given without much thought of the man at the other end of the line. And as a result, all are read with a grain of salt. Philo Vance, the famous character, epitomizes the attitude. "I don't care what comes into my office with the bunch of recommendations that a man ever had. He proved such a bore that I would have written him one myself to get him out of my office."

Which reminds me of a story, says Merle Thorpe in The Nation's Business. An old negro from the southern rural districts had gone to the city seeking employment. Everywhere he went references were asked for. Finally he gave the names of former employers and in due time returned for a decision. Some of the letters were read to him in which he was praised very highly, and his work and loyalty greatly lauded. The old man's eyes opened wide with surprise and pleasure as he remarked, "Well, Ah declar, 'e I had a knowed Ah was such a good nigger as dat Ah shore 'nuff would have got more pay."

Job of Breadwinning Cramping to Genius

When Homer smote his lyre he was probably inspired by an urge more noble than hunger. But in more modern times there has been an incessant lament on the part of men of genius whose expression has been hampered by the necessity of degrading their muse to the position of breadwinner. Dostoevsky, the great Russian writer, gives striking testimony of this in letters, writes the Forum.

"I know I have it in me to write great books," he said—books and stories in which I would condense all my thoughts, all my observations of existence and its deceptions, blighted ambitions and false pleasures. But I cannot do it.

"Who will realize, who has not gone through it, the feelings of a man anxiously waiting for the postman to bring him just enough to live on for a few days, and his disappointment when that postman fails to put in an appearance? And yet this is what I am enduring every single day of my existence. How can I labor for hire only, sell for cash my literary faculties and abilities without these faculties undergoing complete deterioration?"

Parson Was Handicapped

The local all-around sportsman met the vicar, who was returning home with his fishing tackle. The sportsman, who prided himself on being a great angler, and often said so, inquired:

"Hello, vicar! Any luck?" "Yes," replied the vicar, tapping his basket. "I have a trout in here—a pound and a half—that I pulled out from the lower brook."

"Oh, that's nothing," bragged the other. "I've caught dozens of fish of two pounds and over in that stream."

"Ah, but you have the advantage of me," complained the vicar.

"Advantage, vicar?" exclaimed the sportsman. "Same brook, and you have better gear."

"I know that," retorted the reverend gentleman. "But you just remember that I am a parson and you're not!"—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Heroic Monkey

A monkey may be said to have heaped coals of fire upon the head of the entire feline race by a single, and by act. It is well remembered that a good-hearted monkey was the origin of "cat's paw," pulling hot chestnuts from the fire for the benefit of a scheming cat.

A restaurant owner in Hovot, Ark., has long had two pets, a monkey and a cat. They are said to have become great friends. Recently the monkey, after being caught in a trap, was completely destroyed. The manager rescued the creature, struck free and dashed back into the shop and flames. When it reappeared, it was at a window with the cat in its arms. Both animals are safe.

Solid Institution

The Bank of England was incorporated in 1694, and from its outset has been closely connected with the English government. The reserve of its banking department is always in cash or in notes against which there is coin lying in the issue department of the bank. Since it is through the Bank of England that other banks "clear," many of them keep their reserve lying as a deposit in it, rather than in their own banks. It is essential, therefore, to the stability of all banks in that country that the Bank of England shall always be possessed of coin and even be able to pay on demand, all checks of depositors or notes that may be presented to it.

Love for Animals

Interest in animals is so natural with children that it is usually a simple matter to teach love and sympathy for them even where it does not already exist. In presenting an animal that is "new," teachers have splendid opportunity to train powers of observation and to supply a class with a mine of material, says Nature Magazine. The latter as a fit home as the courageous protector of his life and liberty, as a fisherman, and as a special stunt artist is bound to delight children. Take them to see live otters if possible.

Where Eels Breed

The bureau of fisheries says that eels breed in salt water. The American eels breed in water 200 fathoms deep off the southwest coast of Bermuda. European eels breed within a few miles of the same place. The two species have never been known to cross. Young eels migrate to fresh water and live in American streams.

Must Have Security

Lloyd's, the headquarters of the world's shipping insurance, maintains an agent at every port in the world, who transmits news of all ships that pass. All candidates for membership at Lloyd's have to deposit such security for their liabilities as may be required. This security at the present time amounts to more than $20,000,000.

Prosperity Largely a State of Mind, Dayton Manufacturer Demonstrates

"Competition is the life," says J. H. Barringer, prominent Dayton manufacturer, "whether it be of trade or anything else, as long as it is at living, without conscious competition of some sort, life becomes stagnant."

This statement was made in connection with Mr. Barringer's taking 600 salesmen on a two week tour of the West—an excursion carrying the men more than 5,000 miles in three special trains from Chicago, January 28.

"We think it pays," he added, "in fact, we know it does, notwithstanding the great expense and the loss resulting from withdrawing these 600 men from our sales force for two weeks. The men thus thrown closely together have an unusual opportunity to exchange ideas along the line of their common interests, and they return to their work after the outing pepped up both in health and ability, while their morale is improved 100 per cent."

Last year we chartered a steamer and took five hundred of our super salesmen on a trip to Bermuda. This year 500 of our salesmen qualified for the trip, and we plan arranging a similar excursion for the better salesmen next year—with still larger numbers.

The year 1924 was the largest year in the company's history—that's why we maintain it pays. And this, remember, in spite of the fact that the volume of retail trade in 1924 was less than the preceding year. We deal mostly with retailers and for that reason had always looked upon our business as the barometer of the country's retail business. But we have found our business depends upon the ability and aggressiveness of our sales force. May was the latest month in 41 years of the company's history.

J. H. BARRINGER

Mr. Barringer is the general manager of the National Cash Register Company, at Dayton, of which Frederick B. Patterson is president. Both he and Mr. Patterson are said to attribute their large business for the year to the stimulation resulting from the competitive spirit aroused among their hundreds of salesmen both for the honor and the pleasure of qualifying for the "Hundred Per Cent Club," as they call it.

The itinerary of the party includes many of the national parks and scenic attractions of the West, Denver, Colorado Springs, Salt Lake City, San Francisco and other points. The salesmen have all their expenses paid for the trip, including those to and from Chicago, at the same time drawing their salary for the last time.

New York, Dec. 26—Three deaths from poisonous liquor was the toll of this city's fifth prohibition Christmas. Four of 22 other victims in hospitals, including one woman, may die. The death list last Christmas also was three.

After this Mr. Dawson made his annual rounds among the patients and presented them each with a pound box of candy.

FINDING OF A CORPSE SHOWS TONG WAR ON

New York, Dec. 26—The corpse of a Chinese chef, L. K. Fan, was found on Christmas day, an indication that the tong war is not ended. The Chinese had been stabbed to death a week previous, and attention was called to his body, which lay in a locked apartment by a messenger from his slayers, who left a note and fled.

Spiders usually spend the winter in the egg state, the mother enclosing the ball of eggs in a beautiful silken bag, and hiding it wherever she can get a chance. Many insects spend the winter in the larva or worm state. Still others spend the winter in the chrysalis state. These transformations may be seen attached to the twigs of bushes, or under the bark of trees, or imbedded in decayed wood, while the change goes on which transforms the crawling worm into the beautiful winged creature.

In Society's Realm

A Christmas Wedding.

Rev. J. E. Morrison, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of this place officiated at a wedding ceremony at the parsonage yesterday afternoon, when Miss Daisy C. Bell of Sutersville became the bride of William C. Ryan of Monongahela. The bride and groom will reside in Monongahela City where Mr. Ryan is engaged in business.

Miss Helen Reardon entertained a number of her friends last night with a Christmas party at her home in Third street. The interior of the rooms were tastefully and prettily decorated with red and green hangings in keeping with the season. At a late hour, luncheon was served by the hostess with the assistance of her mother, Mrs. Edward J. Reardon.

M'COY WILL KNOW

THE FATE SOME

TIME TODAY

Los Angeles, Calif., Dec. 26.—Some time today Kid McCoy's fate will be in the hands of a jury and before nightfall he probably will know whether he is to be declared guilty of the murder of Mrs. Teresa Mors.

After Judge Charles Crail has given his final instructions, the nine women and three men who comprise the jury will begin their deliberations.

Six findings are possible:

Guilty of murder in the first degree without recommendations.

Guilty and a recommendation of life imprisonment.

Guilty of murder in the second degree (carrying a penalty of from ten years to life).

Guilty of manslaughter (carrying a one to 14-year penalty).

Not guilty.

Disagreement.

The "Kid" was depressed all Christmas day, although several friends visited him. Scores of Christmas presents were received by jailers but were not allowed to reach McCoy. Four of the eight former wives of the ex-pugilist sent him Christmas greetings.

"I loved but two women in my life," he said. "They are both dead—my mother and Teresa Mors. I live for the day when I may meet them above."

threat to Charleroi Folks.

There's nothing more convincing than the statement of someone you know and have confidence in. That's why this talk with Mr. Fletcher of Meadow Ave., should be mighty helpful here in Charleroi.

John Fletcher, Sr., miner, 1001 Meadow Ave., says: "Working in the dampness affected my kidneys. Knife-like pains darted through my kidneys when I stooped and to straighten was difficult. Mornings my back was so stiff and sore I ached all over. My kidneys became sluggish and the secretions were unnatural. Doan's Pills from Piper's Pharmacy drove all signs of the trouble from me."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mr. Fletcher had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Kerensky Denies

Although he denies it, the report is current in Berlin that Alexander Kerensky, who was deposed as premier of Russia by the Bolsheviks in 1917, has made his peace with the soviet and will soon reenter his country.

Keep Ice Pick Handy

Does that person exist who has not had to hunt the ice-pick? The last one who used it was the man who left it in with the ice, on top of the refrigerator or carry it off to some other place. The round eye part of an old curtain fixture attached to a shelf or to the wall near the ice box will save many steps. The pick can be dropped through the round hole and it will always be in its place.—From the Cincinnati.

Kentucky's Pride

The famous "Blue Grass" region of Kentucky has this distinction. Tobacco and hemp have two crops a year and grow quite high, and the blue grass grows almost throughout the year. This region occupies the north central portion of the state, about 10,000 square miles, Lexington being the metropolis. The underlying rock is blue limestone, rich in phosphate of lime.

No Danger From Comets

The Naval observatory says that the mass of a comet is never large; and the material is, for the most part, exceedingly tenuous. It is probable that the earth, if struck by a comet, would witness nothing more than a meteoric shower. The explosions, if any, would be similar to those hitherto observed in the case of large meteorites.

Manners

Manners have been somewhat cynically defined to be a contrivance of wise men to keep fools at a distance. Fashion is shrewd to detect those who do not belong to her train and seldom wastes her attentions. Society is very swift in its instincts and, if you do not belong to it, resists and sneers at you, or quietly drops you.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Author of Famous Poem

The correct name of the poem "The Night Before Christmas" is "A Visit From St. Nicholas." This was written by Clement C. Moore, an American poet and educator at New York city in 1822. He wrote it for his children but afterward it was published in a New York paper and later in a book of his collected poems.

Misconception

B. S. D. hands in this one: "And they tell me you're a newspaper writer," curried the sweet young thing. "That's so interesting! Do you know, it's awfully stupid of me, but I didn't know there was such a thing. I've always thought they printed newspapers!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Keeping Off the Mud

By curling the edge of mudguards of automobiles to form a trough which conducts the mud downward beneath the running boards English manufacturers have succeeded in eliminating the creeping of the sticky dirt around the wing of the protector.

Broke Up Roman Roads

Large stone slabs which formed the core of the Roman roads in England were in medieval times frequently carried off for building purposes. The using of these ancient roads as quarries accounts for their disappearance in many districts.

Man's Best Epitaph

No is the best lived and the truest gentleman who takes leave of the world without a stain upon his escutcheon, and with nothing of falsehood and dissimulation of luxury or pride to tarnish his reputation.

Shoemakers' Patron Saint

The patron saint of shoemakers is St. Crispin, who though of noble family became a shoemaker and is said to have stolen leather to make shoes for the poor. He was beheaded at Soissons, France, about 257.

Power of Books

Perhaps no other things have such power to lift the poor out of poverty, the wretched out of misery, to make the burden bearer forget his burden, the sick his suffering, as books.—Success.

Infallible Test

Another way to tell the newest members of the business men's luncheon club is by noting which ones are present at the time the luncheon is over.

NEW FACTS ABOUT
ANCIENT AMERICA

Pre-Columbian Apartment House Yields Store.

Washington, D. C.—Neil M. Judd, leader of the National Geographic society's expedition to Pueblo Bonito, the pre-Columbian "apartment house" of Chaco canyon, New Mexico, has brought back to Washington an amazing array of exquisite art objects and domestic utensils which shed new light on an early metropolis of Indian America.

Perhaps the most beautiful piece in the collection is a turquoise necklace of 2,500 pieces and four pendants—the only complete specimen of such a necklace known. The method by which the Indians ground down the tiny pieces, and bored them out to be strung on sinews, has won the admiration of modern jewelers who have seen it. The four pendants are remarkable specimens of turquoise, deep blue, and with them, Mr. Judd said, he could have purchased every Indian horse in San Juan county.

Jewels Mounted With Pine Gum. Rings, perfectly rounded, on which are mounted tiny carved turquoise birds. The mounting was done with pine gum, the adhesive of the American Indians which lasted through the ages the rings lay buried in the pueblo ruins.

To get these, and other tiny pieces, the geographic explorers have sifted tons of debris after building a miniature railroad, and set multi-draw steel dump cars to work hauling out the rubbish.

Recovered by this tedious process are some of the closest woven and finest specimens of Indian basketry yet discovered. To preserve these required the utmost delicacy, for after exposure a repulsive odor was with dissipate the specimens. The hope of preserving them lay in washing them immediately upon their exposure.

Historically one of the important finds is a double-headed eagle, the use of which has been unknown in ruins older than the Chaco. The use of a double-headed eagle is due to the fact that the Indians considered this animal as religiously sacred. The eagle, however, is not a native bird of the region. It was introduced by the Spaniards, and the Indians adopted it as a symbol of power.

Not only that, but here is a bit of the tongue the Bonitans used, a relic of the Bonitans, which still has a little of the flesh. These "makeup" devices were used by the Bonitans men, more rather than the women, and they served principally for the beautification of participants in their dramatic religious ceremonies.

Upon also are in the collection some of these were "pleasant pieces" resembling very much the short, large bowl English models. Others resemble cigar holders, with long bowls, and these were used to make clouds in the Bonitans' houses or worship chambers.

Objects which shed light on the economic habits of the Bonitans are the fishers, with jet and turquoise alloys, used to remove flesh from the skins of animals and fishes which were chopped down with minute skill and patience, and bone needles used in sewing skins.

The broad area of common culture of these ancient peoples is disclosed by objects found in their apartments, which were brought from points as distant as the Pacific coast and the valley of Mexico.

Snakes Don't Charm Victims

The popular belief in the power of poisonous snakes to charm their victims into a state of helplessness has no foundation. It is said, however, that under the influence of excitement the victims of snakes are for a moment or so unable to move. This is the only state of life consisted in the following of the victim's efforts with the staring eyes and the incessant darting out and in of the rapid tongue.

Golden-Hoofed Animals

Sheep do well on poor land and improve it. They provide two incomes a year for a reasonable amount of care, and at times when an income is most welcome. Because of their habit of resting at night on the higher ground in the pastures, thus enriching these poorer places, sheep have for ages been called animals of the "golden hoof." The manure and litter from the winter feed, ards, when spread on the fields, also tell their story in the next year's crop.—Wisconsin Farmer.

Is your wife wiser than you?

If you read only the stock and sporting pages, and your wife is like other women, she is wiser than you. She reads the shopping news.

She likes to hear you jingle money in your pockets. She likes to stretch money to the limit, so she won't have to ask for more. She likes to shop strategically. Know what she does?

Comfortably at home in a cushiony armchair, she scans advertising columns. She compares, judges and selects the goods she desires; maps her route; with least effort and minimum time, goes direct to the planned store and buys.

She obtains what she wants at the lowest price it is offered. She is certain of full satisfaction, for she knows advertised goods live up to their claims. She saves time and steps, and returns sufficiently alert to enjoy new advertisements—and to prepare you an appetizing dinner.

A Talk With a Charleroi Man

threat to Charleroi Folks.

There's nothing more convincing than the statement of someone you know and have confidence in. That's why this talk with Mr. Fletcher of Meadow Ave., should be mighty helpful here in Charleroi.

John Fletcher, Sr., miner, 1001 Meadow Ave., says: "Working in the dampness affected my kidneys. Knife-like pains darted through my kidneys when I stooped and to straighten was difficult. Mornings my back was so stiff and sore I ached all over. My kidneys became sluggish and the secretions were unnatural. Doan's Pills from Piper's Pharmacy drove all signs of the trouble from me."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mr. Fletcher had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Kerensky Denies
He's Going Home

Although he denies it, the report is current in Berlin that Alexander Kerensky, who was deposed as premier of Russia by the Bolsheviks in 1917, has made his peace with the soviet and will soon reenter his country.

Keep Ice Pick Handy

Does that person exist who has not had to hunt the ice-pick? The last one who used it was the man who left it in with the ice, on top of the refrigerator or carry it off to some other place. The round eye part of an old curtain fixture attached to a shelf or to the wall near the ice box will save many steps. The pick can be dropped through the round hole and it will always be in its place.—From the Cincinnati.

Kentucky's Pride

The famous "Blue Grass" region of Kentucky has this distinction. Tobacco and hemp have two crops a year and grow quite high, and the blue grass grows almost throughout the year. This region occupies the north central portion of the state, about 10,000 square miles, Lexington being the metropolis. The underlying rock is blue limestone, rich in phosphate of lime.

No Danger From Comets

The Naval observatory says that the mass of a comet is never large; and the material is, for the most part, exceedingly tenuous. It is probable that the earth, if struck by a comet, would witness nothing more than a meteoric shower. The explosions, if any, would be similar to those hitherto observed in the case of large meteorites.

Manners

Manners have been somewhat cynically defined to be a contrivance of wise men to keep fools at a distance. Fashion is shrewd to detect those who do not belong to her train and seldom wastes her attentions. Society is very swift in its instincts and, if you do not belong to it, resists and sneers at you, or quietly drops you.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Author of Famous Poem

The correct name of the poem "The Night Before Christmas" is "A Visit From St. Nicholas." This was written by Clement C. Moore, an American poet and educator at New York city in 1822. He wrote it for his children but afterward it was published in a New York paper and later in a book of his collected poems.

Misconception

B. S. D. hands in this one: "And they tell me you're a newspaper writer," curried the sweet young thing. "That's so interesting! Do you know, it's awfully stupid of me, but I didn't know there was such a thing. I've always thought they printed newspapers!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Keeping Off the Mud

By curling the edge of mudguards of automobiles to form a trough which conducts the mud downward beneath the running boards English manufacturers have succeeded in eliminating the creeping of the sticky dirt around the wing of the protector.

Broke Up Roman Roads

Large stone slabs which formed the core of the Roman roads in England were in medieval times frequently carried off for building purposes. The using of these ancient roads as quarries accounts for their disappearance in many districts.

Man's Best Epitaph

No is the best lived and the truest gentleman who takes leave of the world without a stain upon his escutcheon, and with nothing of falsehood and dissimulation of luxury or pride to tarnish his reputation.

Shoemakers' Patron Saint

The patron saint of shoemakers is St. Crispin, who though of noble family became a shoemaker and is said to have stolen leather to make shoes for the poor. He was beheaded at Soissons, France, about 257.

Power of Books

Perhaps no other things have such power to lift the poor out of poverty, the wretched out of misery, to make the burden bearer forget his burden, the sick his suffering, as books.—Success.

Infallible Test

Another way to tell the newest members of the business men's luncheon club is by noting which ones are present at the time the luncheon is over.

NEW FACTS ABOUT
ANCIENT AMERICA

Pre-Columbian Apartment House Yields Store.

Washington, D. C.—Neil M. Judd, leader of the National Geographic society's expedition to Pueblo Bonito, the pre-Columbian "apartment house" of Chaco canyon, New Mexico, has brought back to Washington an amazing array of exquisite art objects and domestic utensils which shed new light on an early metropolis of Indian America.

Perhaps the most beautiful piece in the collection is a turquoise necklace of 2,500 pieces and four pendants—the only complete specimen of such a necklace known. The method by which the Indians ground down the tiny pieces, and bored them out to be strung on sinews, has won the admiration of modern jewelers who have seen it. The four pendants are remarkable specimens of turquoise, deep blue, and with them, Mr. Judd said, he could have purchased every Indian horse in San Juan county.

Jewels Mounted With Pine Gum. Rings, perfectly rounded, on which are mounted tiny carved turquoise birds. The mounting was done with pine gum, the adhesive of the American Indians which lasted through the ages the rings lay buried in the pueblo ruins.

To get these, and other tiny pieces, the geographic explorers have sifted tons of debris after building a miniature railroad, and set multi-draw steel dump cars to work hauling out the rubbish.

Recovered by this tedious process are some of the closest woven and finest specimens of Indian basketry yet discovered. To preserve these required the utmost delicacy, for after exposure a repulsive odor was with dissipate the specimens. The hope of preserving them lay in washing them immediately upon their exposure.

Historically one of the important finds is a double-headed knife of which has hitherto been unknown. It was found in a cache of old objects and is made of a material not yet determined. It may be a new material or a piece of old material. The knife is a small, thin, double-headed knife, and is made of a material not yet determined. The knife is a small, thin, double-headed knife, and is made of a material not yet determined.

Rough Still Intact. That object looks like a "hanty" box, but it is a piece of old material, and is made of a material not yet determined. The object is a small, thin, double-headed knife, and is made of a material not yet determined.

Not only that, but here is a bit of the tongue the Bonitans used, and Mr. Judd, and he discovered a bit of red clay, which still had a bit of flesh. These "makeup" devices were used by the Bonitans, and were rather than their women and they saved principally for the beauty of their participants in their dramatic religious ceremonies.

Types also are in the collection. Some of these were "pleasant" pieces resembling very much the short, large bowl English models. Others resembled cigar holders, with long bowls, and these were used to make clouds in the Bonitans' houses or worship chambers.

Objects which shed light on the economic habits of the Bonitans are the fishers, with jet and turquoise alloys, used to remove flesh from the skins of animals and fish which were chipped down with minute skill and patience, and bone needles used in sewing skins.

The broad area of common culture of these ancient peoples is disclosed by objects found in their apartments, which were brought from points as distant as the Pacific coast and the valley of Mexico.

Snakes Don't Charm Victims

The popular belief in the power of poisonous snakes to charm their victims into a state of helplessness has no foundation. It is said, however, that under the influence of excitement the victims of snakes are for a moment or so rendered unconscious and are not hit by the hitherto almost motionless snake, whose only sign of life consisted in the following of the victim's efforts with the staring eyes and the incessant darting out and in of the rapid tongue.

Golden-Hoofed Animals

Sheep do well on poor land and improve it. They provide two incomes a year for a reasonable amount of care, and at times when an income is most welcome. Because of their habit of resting at night on the higher ground in the pastures, thus enriching these poorer places, sheep have for ages been called animals of the "golden hoof." The manure and litter from the winter feed, ards, when spread on the fields, also tell their story in the next year's crop.—Wisconsin Farmer.
